“Uncountable was the time I broke down and crumbled, You hold me and glue me back.” Arcane is Swati Singh’s first volume of poems. Her poems come to you like the fresh breeze of spring, tender as raindrops, but her powerful language and craftsmanship make you dwell in the reality of emotions. Her effort to reshape the world, as clouds do in wind, makes her poem profound and elevates its meaning to the next level. Her poems reveal a cavernous connection with nature and an appreciation for human emotions. In this book, you will find poems written over a long time. She brings together themes as diverse as love, nostalgia, war, family and friends, solitude and, of course, the joy of being with nature.

True poetry should enlighten us, encourage us, and they inspire us since they help us to understand why our unsaved loved one is so hard-headed and seemingly bulletproof when it comes to spirituality and the Word of God. These things should encourage us because we begin to understand that someone else’s salvation does not depend upon us or the skill of our presentation of the beauty and bounty of human life. Nothing could be further from the real truth. This book of poetry “REVISIT” penned by Williamsji Maveli is a unique, whimsical, and eclectic collection of soulful poems. It contains some very poignant moments and vibrant attention to detail. These exquisite poems focus on subjects about love in life.

She radiates grace, beauty, honour and elegance. She is defined as a woman full of soulful, honest, elegant love for the family; she takes responsibility for everything that happens at home. This is made possible for her because of the strength that God bestowed upon her when she was created. That inner strength cannot be purchased with money, gold, silver or diamonds. As a result of her strength, her hard work, business acumen, honour and beauty, she has become a force to reckon with. She cannot be pulled down, trampled upon, She is a woman of substance! God has crowned her with beauty and honour. all it takes to live a fulfilled life. The world is waiting for us to explode woman, the world is waiting for us to manifest the glory that has been bestowed on you. This book titled "SHE" is a collection of selected poems penned by Williamsji Maveli.

The SALRM 2011 provides a rich source of information on a range of language-related subjects. A prominent issue remains the changing of street and place names, including the Pretoria/Tshwane and Louis Trichardt/Makhado sagas. Language in education remains a thorny issue; as medium of instruction at school and tertiary level, and the proposal that passing an African language should be a requirement in order to obtain a tertiary degree in South Africa. In terms of language legislation, the draft version of the National Language Act was proposed. The language of record in courts also received attention in the media.

This book is my humble contribution to the world, a naive attempt to transpire my own experiences of what it took of me to stand for aspirations so big, that it took me awhile just to understand that I need to "give up nothing" in order to achieve them. This book is for everyone who loves to live life to its fullest. It is about embracing your fears of exploring life, love, breakthroughs, breakdowns and choices. It's about knowing what it takes to stand for your own dreams. This book has made an attempt to touch, move and inspire all those, particularly young leaders who stand for their aspirations in the face of no possibility. In process of writing this book in past 8 years I got that: I'm here for the results and the opportunity of living in pure & honest intentions. I'm the possibility of being a river of dreams and miracles through commitment. I am here to have my life be on the hot seat..., to be willing to go through breakdowns or whatever else happens to get to the breakthroughs that give me my life. I'm here to invent new ways of being-based on nothing to show up in my life and in the world. I am here because in my intuitive heart I know that my life on earth revolves around bringing the new modes of conversations into the world, especially with researchers and for world peace. I'm here to give my love to others, because I can and because it is the same love that they have for me." The book "My Dreams Are Not For Sale" is a literary masterpiece, an humble contribution to the world. The author tries to share her profound experiences in order to achieve her goals in life! WHEN RIVERS TURN RED is a fiction-based novel about the drastic situation during the Emergency in India between 1975 and 1977, which prevailed in India. Like in any other part of the world, rivers hold a unique place in the Indian revolution and literature. These rivers are a source of livelihood for various fishermen in the state of Kerala in India and are, therefore, nothing less than a blessing. With as many as over forty-four rivers in the state, there is no doubt why this place is called God's own country. This novel focuses on the consequences and after-effects of the national emergency declared in India.

*SHORTLISTED FOR THE FORWARD PRIZE FOR BEST FIRST COLLECTION 2015* There is a Chinese proverb that says: 'It is more profitable to raise geese than daughters.' But geese, like daughters, know the obligation to return home. In her exquisite first collection, Sarah Howe explores a dual heritage, journeying back to Hong Kong in search of her roots. With extraordinary range and power, the poems build into a meditation on hybridity, intermarriage and love - what meaning we find in the world, in art, and in each other. Crossing the bounds of time, race and language, this is an enthralling exploration of self and place, of migration and inheritance, and introduces an unmistakable new voice in British poetry.

It was my intention to publish this third volume of the 'Knit India through Literature' project, compiling works from Konkani, Marathi, Gujarati and Sindhi languages which are spoken in Western India, in the year 2002. There are three primary reasons why this did not happen. The first reason was that I was actively involved in serialising my novels on Madras Doordarshan and Sun TV, which were received very well by the public and even won the Best Serial awards. With a view to adding to the glory of the Tamil language, I went about the task of compiling the best short stories of sixty senior Tamil writers, the unique feature of which was that the short stories were selected as their best by the respective writers themselves, and publishing them in two volumes. This is the second reason. There is yet another reason, which I shall come to later. Although both the earlier mentioned tasks were accomplished in a most satisfactory manner, I was really unhappy because my attention was diverted and that resulted in the progress of the 'Knit India through Literature' project being delayed. Anyway, the last two years events have proved to me that my decision not to write fiction, which would certainly divert and occupy my time, for the past ten years, ever since I started work on the 'Knit India through Literature' project, is indeed right. However, at this juncture when this volume compiling the Western languages is ready for release, it heartens me that I have already finished my interviews with the Punjabi writers and begun preliminary work on the Kashmiri language as well. This gives me hope that my volume on the North Indian languages will be released as per schedule. As I sit down to write the preface for this volume, my thoughts go back to the pain of a loss - the sad and sudden demise of Sri. G.K. Moopnar - that I suffered two years ago. It was the Late G.K. Moopnar who was a great source of encouragement to me and proclaimed at the launch of the 'Knit India through Literature' project, that my victory was his own. His support was not merely verbal and in fact he supported the publishing of the first volume of 'Knit India through Literature' financially and also bought three hundred copies of the volume and distributed them to school libraries at free of cost. I wish to acknowledge his contribution at this stage and also pray that his blessings will help me bring out the fourth volume successfully too. I have already elaborated in the prefaces to the earlier volumes, the difficulties encountered in going and meeting the different language writers in their own homes, interviewing them and then transcribing the tapes. Differences in pronunciation and other problems caused a few factual errors to creep in when the volume on the eastern languages was published and this was pointed out by the concerned writers. In order to avoid this. I made it a point to send the compiled interviews to the concerned writers requesting them to check for factual errors. Most of the writers were gracious enough to respond to the request immediately and sent back the corrected interviews at the earliest. This is the most important third reason for the delay in this volume being published. Of the writers whom I met in Western India, the affection and care displayed by the Konkani and the Gujarati writers is truly unique. Having realised that it was quite expensive to have to travel to each state atleast thrice or four times, the Konkani writers invited me to attend a literary meet organised at Goa and address the gathering. Senior Oriya writer 'Manoj Das' information filled foreword lends to the quality of this volume. I would like to express my heartfelt thanks to him and all others who have supported me and extended their co-operation in the publication of this volume. - Sivasankari CHENNAI August 2003

This volume critically analyses and theorises Asian interventions in the expanding phenomenon of Global Shakespeare. It interrogates Shakespeare's 'universality' from Asian perspectives: how this has been modified or even replaced by the 'global bard' as a recognisable brand, and how Asian Shakespeares have contributed to or subverted this process by both facilitating the worldwide dissemination of the bard's plays and challenging and resisting the very templates through which they become globally legible. Critically acclaimed Asian productions have prominently figured at premier Western festivals, and popular Asian appropriations like Bollywood, manga and anime have created new kinds of globally accessible Shakespeare. Essays in this collection engage with the emergent critical issues: the efficacy of definitions of the 'local', 'global', 'transnational' and 'cosmopolitan' and of the liminalities and mobilities in between. They further examine the politics of 'West' and 'East', the evolving markers of the 'Asian' and the equation of the 'glocal' with the 'Asian'; they attend to performance and archiving protocols and bring the current debates on translation, appropriation, and world literature to speak to the concerns of global and transnational Shakespeare. These investigations analyse recent innovative Asian theatre productions, popular cinematic and manga appropriations and the increasing presence of Shakespeare in the Asian digital sphere. They provide an Asian standpoint and lens in rereading the processes of cultural globalisation and the mobilisation of Shakespeare.

The essential feature of love is that it is of saintly nature. Love is just a word until someone comes along and gives it a meaningful definition. Love exists in different forms: like affection, adoration, friendship, lust, passion and fondness. Often, yielding words of love can easily melt the toughest heart and make anyone highly romantic and blissful. Not only that, our relationships would surely spice up from the symphony of love. It is said that love can make a poet of you. We are the masters of our own fortune, future, destiny. We are the makers of our own fate. When we fully realize this reality, we will no longer search for the truth outside of ourselves. When we realize that we are fully responsible for our own actions and thoughts—and when we become overall responsible human beings—only then will we become ultimately and truly free. We need to stop escaping our liability as well as responsibility. Symphony of love will donate a heart's fulfillment of the most romantic thoughts in bountiful words, sentences and stanza's. True Poets may use to write so romantically so full of love even a dead heart will feel little better, good poetry is a created energy and enthusiasm to readers. Love conquers all. That's what we hear over and over again growing up. True love poetry comes from the heart: that is real feel from the heart When we play sacred , when we pretend to be pure, or when we play bad we fail to do what we need to do, and instead we only do what we want to do—in other words, we only do what our mind and ego tells us to do. When we are ruled by our mind and ego we are not free, no matter how much we pretend to be free. When we are ruled by our mind and ego we look for validity in the world of duality and always, always fall prey to sensuality. All of us are temporarily crazy, but some people are temporarily crazy all the time. When our mind is infected with ego we are temporarily crazy, but when the ego-infection is removed with wisdom we get over our ego and become better—we become ourselves. But some persons refuse to fasten down with themselves, and they remain victims of their ego. They go through this life following the whims of the mind and never gain any lasting stability. They die for their pleasures while living in pain, and in the end they lose everything and gain nothing. Our soul is the cause and the origin of body and mind of all living creatures. This standalone soul is the part of the entire universal spirit of we call God. Hence, the physical and entire functions of a person are governed exclusively by the soul.

Love at the Speed of Light is a collection of poems for people who believe in love. Love is a paradoxical power that can explode in a Big Bang and evolve at the speed of light-or it can silently brighten the nights like stars burning for billions of years. There is a hypnotic magic in losing oneself in the thoughts of one's beloved. The verses in this book speak of this magic. They also explore the feelings of unrequited love, or how lovers sustain themselves when the world tears them apart, and about mistakes made in rash moments that the heartbroken lovers come to regret. This book explores a range of emotions felt by young lovers-from the all-consuming epic thrill of experiencing first love, to the heart-wrenching pain of separation and loss. There's also the bittersweet pain of long distance love, where the pangs of parting are offset by the anticipation of meeting again. If you've ever been in love, these poems will make your heart sing and take you on a journey to experience the highs and lows of love.

This book is the first comprehensive introduction to the literature of eSwatini. It details a literary trajectory that begins with renditions of the country by early travelers and settlers and follows with the emergence of a national literature that is marked by early oral influences and molded by unique sociopolitical interests. Along the way, the author considers how contemporary writing by visitors, expatriates, and journalists have salvaged and recycled earlier images and attitudes through a series of representational and rhetorical practices. In particular, the lingering influence of colonial discourse is explored in the context of the nation's pivotal incwala ritual. A chapter on Hilda Kuper that situates her fiction and drama between outsider and insider accounts is followed by the final two chapters that trace the development of anglophone and siSwati writing and identify themes arising from the major literary genres produced by local authors. The concluding section features a comprehensive registry of writers, with brief summaries of their works.
